

THE BRITISH SOCIETY FOR CLINICAL NEUROPHYSIOLOGY

BURSARY PROGRAMME FOR INTERCALATED DEGREE

Are you a medical student considering an intercalated degree?

The British Society for Clinical Neurophysiology is providing a bursary programme for medical students undertaking intercalated degrees, to support students in neuroscience research, and to raise awareness of the medical specialty of Clinical Neurophysiology and academic opportunities in the field.

- Bursary value up to £5000, paid direct to the student and available for 2024-2025 academic year
- To support a full time research project of at least 6 months duration, supervised by a member of the British Society for Clinical Neurophysiology
- Applications to be submitted electronically by 31 July 2024 to Louise Jones, Administrator to The BSCN louiseannjones@btinternet.com to include:
 - Application outlining the research project (300 words) and how it will fit into the programme of work in the host department
 - CV of the proposed student
 - Previous experience of the supervisor in student supervision